Apple discs were placed in 200 mL glass jars where the material to solution ratio was 1:20 (m/m). The dewatering process was performed for 150 min and three samples were collected at different time intervals for the analysis of moisture and solute contents in the apple discs.

After the osmotic dehydration the apple chips were dried at 105 C in a drier for 120 min until, reaching stable water activity between 0.2-0.3. After the drying, the chips was cooled down to room temperature for 20 min and packed in multi-layered packaging bags.

The packaging material was metalized polypropylene and the chips were packed under the nitrogen atmosphere to avoid moisture absorption, discoloration and spoilage during storage. The chips were stored for 60 days.
